Description

This narrow channel, featuring a drop-off that begins right at its entrance, captivates divers with its massive overhangs, passages, and small caves covered in soft corals of every kind and color. Among connoisseurs, Fotteyo is considered one of the top dive sites in the Maldives. The site is a paradise for photographers and divers interested in marine biology. Sharks, rays, tuna, and many other species of large fish can be observed here in both moderate and strong currents. On the outer reef, barracudas and gray reef sharks also attract divers, and early risers might even spot hammerhead sharks if they're lucky. An absolute MUST-SEE!
