Description

Through various ecological measures, SUBEX has protected the bay like a small nature reserve, where you can enjoy the unique abundance of coral and fish—including rare species such as the winged horsefish and the Red Sea Walkman—while diving on the house reef and snorkeling. Eagle rays and dolphins are frequent visitors.

This unique underwater world is preserved not only through intentions and words, but above all through actions. To protect the house reef and preserve it for future generations, diving operations are organized so that no more than 30 divers are in the water at any one time.

Important Note:

To avoid disappointment, the SUBEX Dive Center asks that you reserve a spot early, as the number of guests is strictly limited.
