Description

This is an ideal spot for afternoon dives. The sandy bottom lies at a depth of 11 to 15 meters, from which several coral blocks rise just below the water's surface. In the easternmost block, at a depth of about 10 meters, there is a cave that provides the ideal home for glassfish and hatchetfish. It's worth slowly circling the reef pillars at various depths—you'll also spot the occasional nudibranch.
